Saved By Seal is a non-profit organization dedicated to the conservation and rehabilitation of seals and other marine animals. Founded in 2003, the organization has grown into a leading force in marine conservation, providing critical care to injured and orphaned seals, conducting research, and advocating for policies that protect our oceans.

Mission and Vision

Saved By Seal's mission is to promote the conservation and well-being of seals and other marine animals, and to inspire the public to become stewards of the marine environment. The organization's vision is a healthy ocean where seals and other marine life can thrive.

History

Saved By Seal was founded in 2003 by Dr. Charles Innis, a veterinarian and marine biologist who has dedicated his life to the care and protection of marine animals. The organization began as a small rescue and rehabilitation center in Maine, but has since expanded its reach to include research, education, and advocacy programs.

Programs and Services

Saved By Seal offers a wide range of programs and services to protect and care for seals and other marine animals. These include:

* Rescue and Rehabilitation: Saved By Seal operates a state-of-the-art marine animal rehabilitation center where injured and orphaned seals are treated and cared for. The center is staffed by a team of experienced veterinarians and animal care specialists who provide expert medical care and rehabilitation services. * Research: Saved By Seal conducts a variety of research projects to better understand the health and ecology of seals and other marine animals. This research helps the organization to develop effective conservation strategies and inform policy decisions. * Education: Saved By Seal offers a variety of educational programs and resources to teach people about the importance of marine conservation. These programs include school visits, public lectures, and online resources. * Advocacy: Saved By Seal advocates for policies that protect seals and other marine animals and their habitats. The organization works with government agencies, businesses, and the public to raise awareness of marine conservation issues and promote responsible stewardship of our oceans.

Success Stories

Saved By Seal has a long history of success in rescuing, rehabilitating, and releasing seals and other marine animals back into the wild. Some of the organization's most notable success stories include:

* In 2005, Saved By Seal rescued a young seal pup named Hope who was found entangled in fishing gear. Hope was successfully rehabilitated and released back into the wild, and she has since given birth to several healthy pups. * In 2010, Saved By Seal rescued a harbor seal named Storm who was suffering from a severe infection. Storm underwent surgery and a long course of antibiotics, and she made a full recovery. She was released back into the wild in 2011, and she has been spotted several times since then. * In 2015, Saved By Seal rescued a grey seal pup named Luna who was found abandoned on a beach. Luna was malnourished and dehydrated, but she was successfully rehabilitated and released back into the wild. She has since been spotted several times, and she is now a healthy and thriving adult seal.

How You Can Help

There are many ways that you can support Saved By Seal's mission to protect seals and other marine animals. These include:

* Donate: Your financial support helps Saved By Seal continue its work of rescuing, rehabilitating, and releasing seals and other marine animals. *

Volunteer: Saved By Seal relies on the help of volunteers to provide care for the animals, assist with research, and educate the public about marine conservation. * Adopt a Seal: You can adopt a seal through Saved By Seal's Adopt-A-Seal program. This program helps to provide financial support for the organization's rescue and rehabilitation efforts. * Spread the Word: You can help Saved By Seal reach more people by sharing information about the organization and its mission on social media and other platforms.

Saved By Seal is a vital organization that is working to protect seals and other marine animals and their habitats. The organization's dedicated staff and volunteers are making a real difference in the lives of these animals, and they are inspiring others to become stewards of our oceans. You can support Saved By Seal's mission by donating, volunteering, adopting a seal, or spreading the word about the organization's work.
